to say that he, as president, would deal "on exactly the same basis that President Johnson is negotiating now. That there would have to be some sort of action, word or deed" on the part of the Communists to win a bombing halt.

Nixon displayed phase two in Erie, before a large airport crowd.

He said if the current administration is unable to win the war, "Then certainly the American people will look at the record."

They'll look at the two candidates, he said. "One helped make the record. The other is not obstructed by it, he's not tied to it."

"And I say let's get new leadership, which will bring an honorable end to that war."

For himself, Nixon said—as he has for more than five months—"I will not indicate what I might do if the negotiations fail, because that will assure that they fail."

He said any hint as to what might be done by a new administration would cripple the chances of the current one to secure a negotiated peace.

Half-Naked Yippies Disrupt House Probe of Demo Convention

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of antiwar protesters who, led by a half-naked Yippee wearing love beads and bands of live ammunition, disrupted a House Committee on Un-American Activities hearing say they are coming back for more.

Fourteen protesters and attorneys were tossed out of a HUAC subcommittee hearing Tuesday after a day of taunting committee members and witnesses who testified that demonstrations during the Chicago National Convention were aimed at creating anarchy.

The hearings got off to a bizarre start when Jerry Rubin, leader of the Youth International Party—Yippee—showed up naked to the waist, wearing love beads and belts of live ammunition strung around his shoulders. He also carried a toy rifle in his hand.

He was hauled from the hearing room, but was allowed to return after he got rid of the ammunition.

He and 13 other persons were later invited to leave for good when they stood in a silent protest against the committee.

The hearings resume Thursday after a break today for a Jewish holy day. Rubin and the others, many of whom have been ordered to testify, say they will return Thursday.

Rubin was thrown out of a 1966 investigation of antiwar protests when he showed up in a rented Revolutionary War costume.

Between taunts from Rubin and the others in the audience and procedural objections by lawyers in the audience, the subcommittee headed by Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., heard testimony on the bloody clashes between demonstrators and police during the Democratic convention in Chicago.

Ichord started the hearings by reading a statement saying the committee had evidence even before the demonstrations that leaders were "determined to effect a general breakdown in law and order preparatory to their long range objective of seizing the powers of government."

James L. Gallagher, an investigator for the committee, testified the aims of the demonstrators "were clearly compatible with the policies of Hanoi, Peking and Moscow."

Sgt. Joseph Brubisic of the Chicago police department said minutes of a pre-demonstration meeting recorded organizer Tom Hayden as saying the protesters "should have people organized who can fight the police, should be willing to get arrested."

Ichord ordered police to escort the demonstrators and their lawyers from the room when the group insisted on standing in silent protest because of what they called "the rapping of the constitution by the committee."

Afterwards, Ichord said "They were no doubt trying to seek a confrontation with this committee and the police. I highly doubt they are going to gain any sympathy from the objective press and the American public."

Ichord said he hoped the hearings could end Friday.

During Tuesday's hearing, Rubin and another Yippee leader, Abbie Hoffman, constantly mocked the committee.

Depending on the testimony, Rubin would give out either a low hiss or a low cheer.

Hoffman, who had a bullwhip taken from him upon entering the room, jumped up on two occasions to yell: "Mr. Chairman, that man has a loaded gun," pointing to a policeman. "They took ours away, but your team kept theirs."

On another occasion, when the lawyers were making points of order, Hoffman rose to say: "Mr. Chairman, may I be excused to go to the bathroom?" Ichord warned spectators they'd have to leave if they weren't quiet. Shortly afterwards, Hoffman rose and said: "I'm going to have an emotional outburst. Can I do it here or must I go outside?"

Wallace Says He Senses More Support

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer
FLINT, Mich. (AP) — George C. Wallace says he senses increased support for his presidential candidacy from organized labor's rank-and-file.

At every city Wallace introduces Alabama and Georgia labor union officials accompanying him on his campaign through the heavily unionized Midwest.

In a nationwide paid political broadcast on CBS Tuesday night he said he has strong support from workers but some union leaders are using "smear tactics" against him.

He said the rank-and-file won't be "fooled by propaganda." The former Alabama governor said, "Anyone who threatens to take away the long-term gains of labor in this country should be defeated for president."

In the telecast he also touched on the controversy over debates between the presidential candidates by accusing Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate, of "being safe" in refusing to debate him.

"Mr. Nixon says he's willing to debate Mr. Humphrey but that he's not willing to debate me," Wallace said. "The polls show that the vice president is running third, so if Mr. Nixon is willing to debate the third runner, he ought to be willing to debate the one who is running second."

Should the debates come about, Wallace added, Nixon "would have to explain how his record differs from what he's saying now."

Wallace heads into industrial areas of Ohio and Pennsylvania today.

Noisy groups of hecklers, mostly college students, interrupted Wallace repeatedly during speeches Tuesday in four Michigan cities, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Flint. They were by far the minority in all the crowds.

The most persistent hecklers, who sang and attempted to drown him out with peace slogans and cries of "Wallace go home," were in Flint where the former Alabama governor spoke to a capacity of about 12,000 in a football stadium.

He addressed 7,000 in a Grand Rapids stadium, 7,000 more on the courthouse steps in Kalamazoo—about the same number which gathered to hear the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last April—and about 5,000 on the capitol steps in Lansing, where Richard M. Nixon drew 3,500 just after he became the Republican candidate.

Michigan, with its 21 electoral votes, is one of several Northern states Wallace hopes to capture.

In Lansing, one dissenter introduced a new form of heckling, a mirror reflecting the afternoon sun in Wallace's eyes.

Returning to his car after the speech, Wallace said: "He blinded me a time or two."

In New York, Wallace won a court battle with the city Tuesday over the right to hold a rally in Shea Stadium on Oct. 9. But the administration of Mayor John V. Lindsay said it would appeal.

State Supreme Court Justice Harold Tessler overturned as "patently unreasonable" and "improper" a ruling by Parks Commissioner August Heckscher that the 56,000-seat, city-owned stadium could not be used because of a ban on its rental for partisan politics.

In his nine-page opinion, Justice Tessler commented, "that a gathering of 50,000 persons, assembled to hear a major presidential candidate, is an event of far deeper significance and meaningfulness than a mere partisan political rally or activity."

Humphrey Raps Hard at Wallace

Associated Press Writer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey is campaigning hard against George C. Wallace in the South—talking of Germany's Hitler and America's times of trouble.

Humphrey, calling Wallace a "creature of the most reactionary underground forces in American life," told a University of Tennessee audience:

"I say to you solemnly in the 1930s the reactionary forces of Germany thought they had found a man to speak for them, and a few years later, helped by an economic depression, that man had destroyed not only his creators but German democracy, the European balance of power... and the result was the carnage of World War II."

"You say these things could never happen in America," Humphrey said. "I devoutly hope and pray that you are right... But I know from deep personal experience we are closer to this possibility than I would have ever believed possible."

An audience estimated at 11,000 turned out Tuesday night. The audience—mainly students—was friendly. There were boos when Humphrey first spoke of Wallace and applause when he said the University of Tennessee was the place to criticize Wallace.

Humphrey steered his campaign from the border state of Tennessee far below the Mason-Dixon line to Jacksonville, Fla.

Here, the vice president continued his attack on Wallace, the third-party candidate for president.

"There are forces abroad in this land striving to divide and embitter our people—radical extremists of the right and left—demagogues who preach fear and hate and division," said Humphrey. Humphrey recalled he had seen extremists whose chants and shouts are aimed at disrupting meetings.

But, he added, "there is another form of radical extremism—just as dangerous, just as corrosive to our liberties—the extremism of those who preach disrespect for our courts, for certain laws, who play to the basest fears, and deepest suspicions of our people."

Humphrey said a strategy of organized hate "can lead America to disaster, just as surely as the radical tactics of the shouters and the disrupters."

Humphrey lashed at Wallace's record.

While Wallace is running on a platform of law and order, Humphrey said, as governor of Alabama he disobeyed courts, insulted judges, and headed a state "with the highest murder rate in the nation."

"He could not maintain order in his own state—where he had the power—but now he promises to maintain order in every city and state where he will not have the power," the vice president said in a prepared speech.

Humphrey said Alabama housewives pay the highest sales tax in the country, six cents on the dollar; wages of working men in Alabama were third lowest in the nation; only two states spend less per pupil in education than Alabama; and Alabama has one of the lowest workmen's compensation systems in the country.

Three Killed in Collision at Stuttgart

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — Three persons were killed and two others injured in a car-truck collision here Tuesday.

The victims were identified as William E. Dyce, 18, his sister, Barbara, 15, and Frances Munnerlyn, 15, all of Stuttgart. Injured were Tomny Pat Trayhan, 18, and Ernest Schauvin, 16, both of Stuttgart.

State Police said the five were in a car driven by Dyce. The car swerved away from a truck pulling out of a service station, then skidded into the path of a semitrailer truck driven by Junior Maloy of Stuttgart.

Charges Crank Doesn't Back Nat'l Ticket

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Tuesday that his opponent has "pussyfooted around and double-talked" about his support of the Democratic presidential ticket.

Rockefeller said he believed Marion Crank, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, believes he has some support among backers of George Wallace, the third party presidential candidate, and the AFL-CIO leadership hopes Crank will win enough support from them to benefit the Democratic presidential nominee by pulling votes to him.

Rockefeller said it would be "self-defeating" for citizens to vote for Wallace to express opposition to the Democratic party policies when the GOP ticket appears to have more chance of winning than Wallace does. The governor also said the state AFL-CIO endorsement of only Democratic candidates "saddens, but does not surprise me."

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

The Boughton Baptist Church, near Prescott, was the scene of the marriage of Maggie Marie Havener to Jerry O'Neal Keith August 9, 1968.

The bride is the daughter of Elder and Mrs. Lewis Havener of Arkadelphia. The groom is the son of Mrs. Barnam Wright of Hope.

Rev. Earl Robinson of Cabbot, Arkansas, performed the double-ring ceremony before a background of greenery and lighted candles. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Caroline Brown.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length gown of peau de sole fashioned with a chapel train of satin. She carried a bouquet of white gladiolus. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a tatra of pearls.

Miss Julie Hughes served the bride as maid of honor. She wore a gown of blue crepe. Miss Carol Havener, sister of the bride, attired in a gown of blue crepe, and Miss Linda Cox, gowned in pink crepe, served as bridesmaids.

Little Miss Gail Spears served as train bearer. She wore a gown of orchid voile. Miss Mary Havener, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

Kenny Formby served as best man. Robert Havener, brother of the bride and Gary Brownlighted the candles and also served as ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Havener wore a dress of blue knit. She wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Wright, mother of the groom, chose a blue dress with a corsage of white carnations, also.

A reception followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over red with a center arrangement of mixed flowers.

Mrs. Jerald Spears made and served the tiered wedding cake topped with a large white bell. Mrs. Martha Smith served at the punch bowl.

For a trip to Shevport, the bride chose a white brocade dress. The couple will reside at 1007 West 22nd Street, North Little Rock, Arkansas.

Every bridge expert when cornered will break down and admit that he is one of the greatest men in the world when it comes to a two-way queen location problem.

The theory is that some sort of clue is always available to increase chance, from 50 per cent to something a lot higher in favor of finding it.

Today's hand is an invention of English expert Terence Reese. If you run off your tricks in spades, diamonds and clubs, you may find out that East started with four hearts and West with three. That increases declarer's odds to four to three but this time the queen is in the hand with only three hearts.

Reese adds some zest to the problem by saying you are playing in a pair tournament against two elderly ladies you have never seen before. It is a master's event, so you know that they are good players. Now, how do you play the

WR Suffering From an Infection

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The governor's press aide said Tuesday that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller is suffering from an acute upper respiratory infection and bronchitis.

Bill Conley said, though, that the governor has "insisted on going ahead with his schedule." Rockefeller has had a fever of 101 degrees, said Dr. Drew Agar, who recommended that the governor cancel his schedule until he is well.

hand?

There is no guarantee to go with the line of play that Reese suggests, but it is most ingenious.

Lead a club to your hand, then play the jack of spades. Go up with dummy's ace, return to your hand with a second club and lead the jack of hearts.

West is going to react some way or other to the lead of the jack of spades. He will also react to the lead of the jack of hearts. If you get the same reaction, just play East for the queen of hearts. If you get materially different reactions, play West for that card. At the worst, you are betting even money. At the best, you will have a sure thing going for you.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — An especially large number of people stay home and watch television on Tuesday nights. And the evening has an especially varied bill of fare. It includes five new programs ranging from cops and cowboys to widows in situation comedy.

CBS' "Lancer," is a new horse opera, an early evening entry with a surface resemblance to "Bonanza." But if the series' second episode Tuesday night was typical, its mood and style is closer to "The Guns of Will Sonnett" than the action on the Ponderosa.

Murdoch Lancer is the father of the clan, and raises sheep and cattle on his ranch. He has a couple of sons by different marriages, but unlike the all-male Cartwright menage, he also has a pretty girl as a ward.

The show focused on a 10-year-old boy with a bad guy for a father. The boy, abandoned by his father and about to be adopted by a good farm family, was kidnapped by a couple of black hats. They were dispatched by the good Lancer folks early in the story and after that the plot revolved around efforts of a notoriety-seeking sheriff to lure the outlaw father into a trap by using the boy as a lure.

There was plenty of gun play, galloping horses and other familiar Western doings.

Andrew Duggan plays the senior Lancer, and his sons—who were almost incidental in Tuesday night's story—are played by Wayne Maunder and James Stacy.

ABC's jaunty "It Takes a Thief" has returned with the same droll approach to crime and international intrigue that turned it into a midseason success last spring.

Robert Wagner, playing a cool, attractive thief, was trying to steal some vital papers for his secret U.S. agency. The papers were held in a trick safe—it opened only when Enrico Caruso on an old record hit a certain high note—in the library of a rich, music-loving Italian millionaire.

Our hero masquerades as manager of a famous, temperamental soprano to get into the rich man's villa, but has a big problem with the singer's hairdresser, an effete character who is really an agent of the villain who also wants the papers.

There was the usual glossy setting of the show, glimpses of life among the monied classes, narrow escapes and the inevitable tussle at the end. It was a pleasant, light-hearted way to kill an evening hour.

The police-action show that follows, "N.Y.P.D." is one of those tough, tense slices of a cop's life. The subject on which the boys in blue worked Tuesday night was an assault case in which the culprit was known. The problem was to persuade the victim, a married woman, to identify him and help convict him.

The half hour was short on

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Battel

WRITER

Dear F. W.: Forty years ago they called them "companionate marriages." . . . You know, the "roaring 20s" and the "now" 60s were somewhat alike except for one big difference: Back then they didn't give sex much social significance. They just enjoyed it. —H.

Dear Helen: My boy friend has an apartment in town where he goes to get away from his wife. I thought I had the only key to it.

Now I find out there are five keys floating around. He says he lets his friends use the place when he isn't there, but how do I know? Three of the keys are owned by women!

He told me he only married his wife because she had money—that was when he was drunk one night and talked too much. A divorce would really ruin him, as he'd have to go back to work.

Should I call up his wife and tell her about what goes on in the apartment? Or should I believe I'm still the only woman in his life? —W.S.

Dear W: Correction: Not the ONLY woman, but the OTHER woman, and maybe one of several. Why don't you turn in your key, but NOT to the wife? She'll find out on her own without your get-even scheme. —H.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dean Martin is inclined to cut up during camera changes for his television variety show. When he does, this sort of conversation is sometimes heard over the loud-speaker between him and his producer-director Greg Garrison:

Garrison— Please, Dean. You're not acting like a star.

Martin— I'm not a star; I'm a personality!

Garrison believes the distinction is significant. He further predicts that it will be the deciding factor in the survival of the 15 variety shows in prime television time this season. "The shows that are built around a strong and engaging personality will succeed; those that aren't, won't," he said flatly.

Garrison should know. He has been the director of the Dean Martin Show since its beginning four years ago and has produced it for most of that time. He attributes the current cycle for variety shows to the success of the Martin hour on NBC Thursday nights. Other, less prejudiced observers of the TV scene are inclined to agree.

Why has the Martin show thrived?

"Because people like him," observed Garrison. "Everybody who knows Dean likes him; he's that kind of a guy. And it comes across on TV. He is a very likable personality."

Yet the Martin show did not take off like a rocket four years ago. It had a shaky beginning, the reason being a misjudgment of the Martin temperament. "Everybody thought Dean didn't want to work," remarked the producer-director. "So he was given only a few songs to sing and a few jokes to say. The rest of the time he sat down and pointed toward the guest stars. Soon we realized the mistake and began involving Dean more."

But work, Martin-style, is different from that of most other performers. His ability to "wing" a show in one day is well-known.

"When Dean walks through the studio door on the morning of the show," Garrison said, "He doesn't know what he is going to sing, or what he is going to say; he doesn't even know who the guest stars are going to be. I make it a point never to call him during the week for any reason."

"This season we are even doing away with the dress rehearsal. We will have only a run-through and then do the show itself. There is a reason for this. In previous seasons, we always had a dress rehearsal before an audience. Dean being the pro he is, he naturally put out for those in the studio; even between camera setups he would joke with the audience."

"When we came to the actual taping, it was like the second show in Vegas. He had already gone through the routines once before, and he didn't have the same energy. So we're going to tape the show without a dress rehearsal and keep the mistakes in. The audience loves them anyway."

Baseball Spotlight on Series

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) - While Bob Gibson and Denny McLain squirmed in the World Series spotlight today, another Cardinal and another Tiger fidgeted with their own problems.

Oriando Cepeda's stem from his hitting and Mickey Stanley's from his fielding.

Cepeda is the St. Louis first baseman who's built a reputation as a lusty hitter during the season but a failure as a hitter during the Series.

Stanley is the Detroit center fielder who's become known for his defensive ability in center field but who suddenly must do the same thing at shortstop.

In today's first game of the World Series, Cepeda's job was to try and help power 13-shutout Gibson past 31-game winner McLain. Stanley, on the other hand, was responsible for not letting any Cardinal hits get past him.

Cepeda the National League's Most Valuable Player last year after batting .325, managed only three hits in 29 at-bats against Boston, giving him a two-series total of 6-for-48, or .125, and three runs batted in.

This year has been a lot different for him because he plummeted to .248.

"It's just one of those things," said Cepeda. "I wanted to do better, but I couldn't. I knew what I was doing. I got some bad habits. I just keep trying to get rid of them and hoping, but nothing helped."

Stanley, meanwhile, must concentrate on the defensive part of his game. After all, today was only the ninth time in his career he's been a shortstop.

He's there because Tiger Manager Mayo Smith wanted to get Al Kaline's bat into the lineup. With Kaline going to right, Jim Northrup switched to center and Stanley to the infield.

The 26-year-old Tiger first played short in late August, then worked there the last six games of the season.

"I'm really happy Mayo had enough confidence to try me there," Stanley said. "If he wasn't afraid, I shouldn't be."

Smith also indicated that if anything goes wrong, he'll pull Stanley, move him back to center and put Ray Oyler at short.

"Remember, this is for Wednesday," the manager said about what still can be classed as an experiment. "It won't necessarily be the same on Thursday."

For Thursday's second game, the last before the teams move to Detroit, Smith plans to use Mickey Lolich, 17-9, as his pitcher while Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst is ready with Nelson Briles, 19-11, winner of last year's third game.

This year's third game pitchers on Saturday will be Earl Wilson, 13-12, for Detroit and Ray Washburn, 14-8, for St. Louis.

By that time, it should be established if Cepeda is a World Series hitter and Stanley a World Series fielder.

Arms Is the Talk of First Game

By MKERATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) - Arms.

That's all the talk has been about prior to today's opening of the World Series. Arms. The ones that belong to Denny McLain and Bob Gibson.

But how about legs; specifically Lou Brock's?

Brock probably is the one player who could change the Series around, just as he did last year against Boston when the focus also was on pitchers, Gibson and Boston's Jim Lonborg.

All Brock did was steal a World Series record seven bases while hitting .414.

But while the focus remains on McLain and Gibson, the eyes of Detroit catcher Bill Freehan will be squarely on Brock.

"We can't let him run wild," Freehan says pointedly. "The first time he goes is important - everyone wants the first one. The best thing is if he doesn't get on base, but if he does the pitcher's got to give me a shot at getting him if he goes."

And there's little doubt that

Bobcats Are Determined to Fight Back

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer
After two days of workouts towards the Malvern game Friday night, the Hope Bobcats and the coaching staff only reveal a grim determination to fight back and show everybody just how good Hope is.

Tackle and noseman Mickey Allen is back with the team now, even though his bad knee requires heavy taping before every practice. Mickey wants to play in his senior year, though, and he'll be out there fighting come Friday night. Also Rodney Jones, the Bobcats' leading ground-gainer in two of the first three games, is back with his ankle healed.

Our defensive secondary, which is underrated because of its fast progress through the young season, came out with 14 stitches of battle wounds in their best game against Smackover. Halfback John Spraggins won the honors with a nine-stitch cut over his left eye, and scrappy Sid Waler needed five stitches for a gash in his hip.

Most everybody is back at full speed now, and well they should be against an opponent with the power and depth of Malvern. The Leopards may be 1-2 for the year, but those losses were a 13-10 fluke on a bad punt snap to Little Rock Catholic and a 12-0 shortcoming to Hot Springs, now 4-0 and No. 5 in the entire state.

Should the Bobcats pull off the upset over Malvern in Hammons Stadium this week, it would throw 4-AA into a big jumble behind almighty Fairview, and the Cards have yet to play Arkadelphia, Malvern, or the Bobcats. But for Hope, this game is the must battle.

Magnolia's Panthers should roll on to the 4-AA East title after whipping Crossett 26-7 last week, since the Eagles were the only real challengers to Magnolia in the first place. This week the Panthers should turn the lights out for Smackover, now 3-1, with their overwhelming depth and power in the backfield.

Do start making your plans now to attend the game with Malvern, as the Bobcats will need more support than they have received all year. There ought to be a full house with the Malvern fans before gametime, and fans are encouraged to also go to the Junior Auxiliary's Spaghetti supper before the game.

As for the continued pleas for larger crowds, this is solicited because the loud home following often means as much as seven points in the outcome of the game. The weather for football is getting better, too, with the cool nights becoming more and more frequent, making it more comfortable for the spectator.

One thing the Bobcats don't need is a wet field and rainy weather, because much of Hope's chances rely on the effectiveness of the passing game, which was so outstanding against DeQueen. Malvern, meanwhile, has a big line with four 200-pounders who can all hit with authority. And the Leopards still remember last year, when they lost the 4-AA crown by one point to Fairview 7-6, because anyone from Malvern will tell you that is their big game of the year.

Switching the subject a bit, the surprising Yerger Tigers meet their roughest test so far in Nashville Friday night. That contest had originally been scheduled for Hammons Stadium on Saturday night but was changed. Yerger, now 3-0, will pit their wide-open offensive attack against the brute strength and outside running of Nashville. It should be a real head-knocker, and will likely decide who will take the cake in District 7-A.

Tomorrow night the Bobkittens return to their home field to host the Camden Panther Cubs, who are slightly off this year after line to harass Namath, and cornerbacks Butch Byrd and Bookie Edgerson both returned interceptions for TDs. Byrd went 53 yards and Edgerson 45.

Janik's work moved him into second place in AFL interception statistics for the season behind Oakland's Dave Grayson.

Grayson intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble, helping the Raiders defeat Houston, 24-15. His two steals gave the speedy Oakland defensive back four for the season, matching his total for all of last year.

Hogs Hottest SWC Team in Scoring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Southwest Conference statistics reflect the current trend in college football: grass-gobbling offenses and rather porous defenses.

Southern Methodist and its pass-happy quarterback Chuck Hixson are riddling the record books with his bullet tosses. Hixson completed 37 of 69 passes for 417 yards against Ohio State last week to set three individual marks. The total of 76 attempts and 40 completions for 437 yards were new team records.

Jerry Levas caught 15 passes against the Buckeyes, bettering the SWC mark of 13.

Hixson now leads in total offense with 695 yards. He has 700 yards passing and a minus five yards in the rushing department. SMU is the team leader in total offense with a 457.5 yard average.

Texas A&M has the best team defense, allowing an average of 304 yards per game.

The Mustangs' total offense of 915 yards is the most accumulated by a SWC team in two games since the 1961 Longhorns gained 967.

Arkansas is the hottest scoring team with a two-game total of 88.

In 1928, the seven SWC teams scored a total of 356 points in their entire league schedules. The same seven, excluding Tech, have 351 to their credit through only two games.

Norman Bulaich of Texas Christian leads the rushers with 154 yards in 20 carries.

Steve O'Neal of Texas A&M leads the punters with an average of 46.4 yards on 14 boots.

Larry Alford of Texas Tech is the top punt return specialist with 208 yards on seven runbacks for a 29.7 average. Gordon Utgard of Baylor is the best at returning kickoffs - six for 125 yards for a 20.8 average.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) - Hordes of hungry squirrels, forced out of the southern Appalachians by food shortages, are damaging crops in their northward migration, the Georgia Game and Fish Commission reports.

Bill Collins, a commission biologist, said an unusually large number of squirrels were torn last year, but a late frost coupled with a summer drought left little food for them in the mountains. Reports of squirrel migrations have come from Georgia and the mountains of North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Picks Winners in Saturday's College Games

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — The college football schedule-makers will have a hard time topping last week's Purdue-Notre Dame brawl this season.

But this Saturday's grid pairings could produce some fireworks too, with Southern California, Penn State, UCLA and Alabama among the nationally-ranked powers facing formidable rivals.

We're back in the pass pocket again after scrambling for short yardage last weekend in the forecasting league. The completion record to date is 93-28-7... a .725 clip if you count the ties against us.

The picks:
Southern California over Miami, Fla.; O. J. Simpson, who has rushed up a storm in his first two games, should calm the tough Hurricanes.

Penn State over West Virginia: Each has one of the East's finest linebacking trios. But Penn State has more razzmatazz to go with its red dogs.

UCLA over Syracuse: The Orangemen flattened UCLA on the West Coast last year. Greg Jones & Co. should settle the score at Syracuse.

Mississippi over Alabama: 'Bama had trouble scoring against VPI and Southern Mississippi.

Notre Dame over Iowa: What usually happens to the team that tangles with Notre Dame after an Irish setback?

Florida State over Texas A&M: The Seminoles are on the rebound after a tough loss to Florida. And Ron Sellers, their All-American end, can bounce higher than most.

Purdue over Northwestern: It's a wonder the Wildcats have any claws left after run-ins with Miami and USC on successive weekends.

Georgia over South Carolina: The Bulldogs have been waiting two weeks to get back at somebody after being 'led in a last-play knot by enemies.

Arizona State over Wyoming: If the Sun Devils can get past Wyoming, the road to the Western Athletic Conference title is all downhill.

Indiana over Illinois: The Hoosiers have taken 47-0 and 44-0 by Kansas and Missouri.

Missouri over Army: Vanderbilt proved last week that the Army can be outflanked.

Oregon State over Washington.

Kaline on Inside Looking Out

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Al Kaline was on the inside looking out today. It beat the view from his living room armchair... or the Detroit Tigers' bench.

Kaline, the gifted outfielder whose 15-year vigil ended when Detroit nailed its first American League pennant since 1945, started in right field for the Tigers in today's World Series opener against St. Louis and fireballer Bob Gibson.

A few days ago, the 33-year-old Kaline virtually was resigned to watching his first Series from the dugout. Plagued by injuries, including a broken right forearm, this year, he had lost his starting outfield spot.

Mayo Smith thought otherwise. After the Tigers' season finale last Sunday, manager Mayo Smith announced he would shift center fielder Mickey Stanley to shortstop, move Jim Northrup from right to center and return Kaline to his old post.

"I think it's worth the gamble to get Kaline into the lineup," Smith said. "We'll need as much firepower as we can get against a guy like Gibson."

"This move was not made out of sentimentality toward Kaline."

Kaline, a Detroit fixture since he won the AL batting title at the age of 21 in 1955—his second major league season—convicted Smith he was ready to produce in the Series during the Tigers' final set with Washington last weekend. He drilled eight hits in the three-game series to finish with a .287 average, tops among Detroit regulars.

"I didn't go to Mayo and tell him I wanted to play in the Series," Kaline said. "But I thought I might have a chance because he told me some time ago not to worry and to keep working out in right field."

The expression, "Fourth Estate," is believed to have been first used by Edmund Burke, English statesman, to signify the newspaper profession.

Ferocious Heartthrob

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Gerald Louis Kramer is the kind of guy who would top a teen-age girl's list of what she wants in a future husband.

He is 6-3, 252 pounds of well-dressed masculinity. He is articulate, has a warm smile and a twinkling "all-for-you, baby" kind of a wink. Gerry gets extra points because he listens attentively, answers even the most rapid questions with directness and remembers a name after the first introduction.

He is, miniskirted gals eyeing him at a shy distance agree, groovy.

Such a syrupy rundown of an encounter with Kramer may get him more choice ribbings from fellow employees back in Green Bay, Wis., when he returns to fill in his week on multiple jobs.

Kramer is busy with a bow-and-arrow factory, makes commercials, has a weekly television show in Wisconsin, diving equipment concern servicing the oil industry in Louisiana and a restaurant in Denver.

During his spare time last year, he jotted down his daily thoughts or talked out his highs and lows to an impartial tape recorder on the job that is his bread-and-butter. He also plays guard for the Green Bay Packers. And that was why Kramer was on the cocktail circuit at the beginning of the pro football season.

He and his collaborator, Dick Schaap, took time out before meeting the press here to discuss "Instant Replay, The Green Bay Diary of Jerry Kramer." (World Publishing Co.) They had their hair done at Jerry's of Madison Avenue. Kramer's sculptured haircut, black-and-white-striped shirt and pale green jacket with prominent stitching reflects his belief, expressed in the book, that a "Packer" should look good at all times and reflect pride in his team.

It's part of the dedication and discipline Kramer brings to his 11th year in pro ball. It (and thoughts of a $25,000 bonus) goaded him into the block against the Dallas Cowboys that put Bart Starr into the end zone with 13 seconds left on the clock and gave Green Bay its third straight NFL championship.

Moments such as these brought millions of men across the country to their stockinged feet. A few women shared the hilarity of victory, too—all on television.

Kramer has been thinking about the Sunday afternoon gap the game causes between husband and wife. Pro ball eats into six months of Sundays.

"It is a violent sport," the famed headcracker admitted. "Most women are timid about such a sport. I imagine many women when they see the contact and the brutality. It's different from a man. He envisions himself in the role of a player."

Education begins at home for Kramer. "My wife Barbara knows only as much as she wants to know about football," he said. "She knows when to walk softly around the house when things go wrong."

After 18 years of football (10 with Green Bay), Kramer said, "I can't divorce my emotions from the field. I brood and am moody after a bad game. When we win and I've been good, we may go out dancing."

In his own little world of violence, Kramer finds rioting by students and antiwar protesters confusing.

"I watched the political conventions this year and realize I'm asking questions I should have thought about 10 years ago," he noted.

"I don't understand the hippies and yuppies. They must have a dedication more than most, but I can't see what it is. I certainly don't understand why they have to be dirty, grow long hair and generally act like asses."

"If I were a president or dictator of man in singular power, I would be hard on the lazy and indolent rioter and ease up on the others. I feel there are two kinds of youth—those who are using an ideal for the thrill of getting attention and those who are bursting for the truth. Life is not easy. In fact, it is hell and I have little sympathy with those who don't accept this fact, work hard and do their share."

He winked again. And hell was briefly sidetracked.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — There was a time during the early stages of man's inhumanity to man in this century that a college football coach was the recipient of the academic and alumni equivalent of police brutality. Those were the days when a football coach's friends were numbered by the relatives he had, not counting those on his wife's side or those who were alumni.

Today it is the college president who gets the action. This is the year 300 colleges and universities are looking for courageous souls to fill the vacancy created by the exit of the prexy. It takes about a year to find a college president and 30 minutes to find a coach. Some coaches think that this is evidence that an institution can run longer without a president than a coach but what it really means is that presidents are much smarter than coaches—coaches volunteer while presidents are drafted and good chiefs are tougher to find than Indians.

Can you imagine 300 head-coaching jobs being open in the country and no one rushing to accept the challenge? They could shoot the coach at State U or Ivy mouth at sunrise or ship him to Saudi Arabia as a sand salesman and you could have his replacement in time for the afternoon editions or the 6 o'clock news.

Our college presidents are now being second-guessed by everyone from the students and faculty to the communications media and alumni on their decisions. There are more prexy's making goal line stands in front of their offices than their ball clubs are making on Saturday. It may come soon that a president's won-loss record will be publicized at the end of the year and, at present pace, his schedule is much longer and tougher than his football coach's.

College presidents will have to learn to organize and shift the responsibility as the coaches have learned to do. The mentors have changed defensive coaches, offensive coaches, recruiters and, from my point of view, started the most dangerous trend of all—having the athletic directors fired. This is in keeping with the present movement on campuses of questioning God, motherhood and country.

The coach is really the last outpost of the "benevolent despot" on campus, but even he has been challenged across the country by minority committees who wish to determine who plays, when they play and at what position they play.

It appears that in the name of harmony a few coaches have agreed to forfeit their academic freedom. They have accepted the principle of approbation by committees concerning the playing of personnel. This is tantamount to the history professor accepting his classes' decision that the South won the Civil War.

The way some coaches have negotiated their agreement I wonder if they get fired if the Players Committee is released also. There was a time when one bought a ticket, joined the alumni or paid the coach before you told him what to do. Now, you volunteer for the team and run for office.

The coach deals with only his players, but the harassed president has to deal with students and faculty sit-ins, picketing and seizure of his office and, in one case, even the theft of his sherry.

What all this means is that the next time you have some sympathy for a harassed, beleaguered minority, give a thought to the president along with the coach. I am sure they each have a greater appreciation of each other's problems these days.

Alford, Dowdy Two Tech Top Performers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer
One of the more exciting phenomena witnessed by a record crowd of 50,167 in Lubbock last weekend, was Tech Tech sophomore Bruce Dowdy changing from a question mark into an exclamation point.

Everybody saw plenty as the ruddy Raiders squashed Texas 31-22 Saturday. Things like: Dowdy throwing a key block to spring safety Larry Alford loose for an 84-yard punt return for a touchdown; Dowdy recovering a blocked field goal attempt; Dowdy recovering a blocked field goal attempt; and Dowdy breaking up two drives by intercepting a pass and stopping a screen pass.

Operating a few feet behind Dowdy at safety, Alford was having his own fun. He returned another punt 49 yards to the Texas two, setting up the score that broke the Longhorns' backs. He also caused UT back Ted Koy to fumble—and start Tech on a touchdown drive.

An Associated Press selection committee found Alford and Dowdy's performances so inseparable, it named Dowdy the Southwest Conference Lineman of the Week and picked Alford as the league's Back of the Week.

"It felt great and it really looked good in the films," Dowdy said of his jarring block on UT's Steve Worster, leaving Alford with only daylight on his 84-yard return.

"I was to make sure the punt went off and then pick up the safety," Dowdy said. "Steve (Worster) was behind Larry and I didn't want to clip so when Larry went by I just stepped in and cut Worster down."

Coach Darrell Royal said his Longhorns' downfall came in the kicking game and Dowdy said that's just how the Raiders planned it.

"We've worked a lot on the punt return block and we've got it down almost perfect," said Dowdy, a 6-foot-3 200-pounder from Pasadena.

If the Raiders had a few surprises for the Longhorns, this week's foe Colorado State, got a full view of Tech's arsenal, and so did Texas A&M, next week's opponent. But Dowdy doesn't think it will make any difference.

"I believe that our defenses are set up now," he said. "I believe our defense can hold up against anybody, no matter if they do know what we do. Other linemen receiving votes were Ken Fleming of SMU; Bill Hobbs, Texas A&M; Cliff Powell, Arkansas; and Richard Campbell, Texas Tech's other defensive end."

Alford, a junior letterman from Houston Memorial, saw nothing new about his catching punts.

"I guess I've been catching them since I got going," he said. "Coach King had me catching punts during my red shirt year. I'd play the safety of that week's opponent. I'd catch maybe 20-30 punts per day. It's really paid off."

Alford, who also accounted for four tackles and one assist, led the SWC in punt returns last season, catching 32 for 320. This year he's already gained 208 yards on seven returns.

Alford remembers last year's elation over defeating Texas 19-

THE DOCTOR SAYS

'Nervous Breakdown' An Inaccurate Term

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt

 professional advice from a psychiatrist or clinical psychologist.

 Although many persons still speak of having a nervous breakdown, this term is inaccurate because there is no breakdown of their nerve tissue. The term "nervous exhaustion" is equally misleading because, no matter how tired the victim feels, there is no exhaustion of his nervous system. Instead, there is a breakdown of his effectiveness, caused by emotional strife, although it may not always be readily recognized as such.

 Failure to pass an examination, a financial reverse or marital difficulties may trigger the "breakdown" but the basic cause in each case is a severe blow to one's expectations and one's pride. The usual manifestations are loss of appetite, a feeling of depression, insomnia, loss of weight, irritability and jitters.
 None of these symptoms necessarily means a breakdown but, taken together and in the presence of one or more causative factors, a diagnosis can usually be made.

 The common advice to take a vacation, get away from it all and give yourself a change of scene may afford some temporary relief. But it will do no lasting good if you come back with the same old attitudes toward life and return to the situations that caused the trouble in the first place.
 Anyone who cannot work out a constructive solution to his problems unaided should seek

 Q—I have always had headaches. In the last year they have become worse. A neurologist says I have occipital neuralgia. He is giving me traction, muscle relaxers and Darvon. Would severing the nerve help? Would this cause numbness?

 A—The occipital nerve is one of the branches coming from the spinal cord in the neck. Severing the nerve would relieve the pain but would leave the area supplied by this nerve numb.

 Q—I am taking reducing pills prescribed by my doctor and also birth control pills.
 Can the combination of these two cause any harmful side effects, such as nausea?

 A—Either drug alone may cause nausea. Taken together, this effect may be increased.
 Careful adjustment of the dosage often relieves this symptom.

 Q—My doctor is giving me
 Adipex to curb my appetite.
 Is it habit-forming?
 A—No.

 Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt,
 M.D., in care of this paper. While
 Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

 "Alice in Wonderland" and "Curiosa Mathematica" were written by the same man, Charles Lutwidge Dodgson. Although Dodgson was known as a mathematician and logician, he is remembered for his works of whimsy written under the pseudonym Lewis Carroll. "Alice" was inspired by and writ-

 We offer our most grateful and heartfelt appreciation for each expression of sympathy in the recent death of our loved one. Without the sustaining grace of God and the love and loyalty of friends and loved ones our grief would be more than we could bear. May God Bless you.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is a unique feature of wolverine fur?

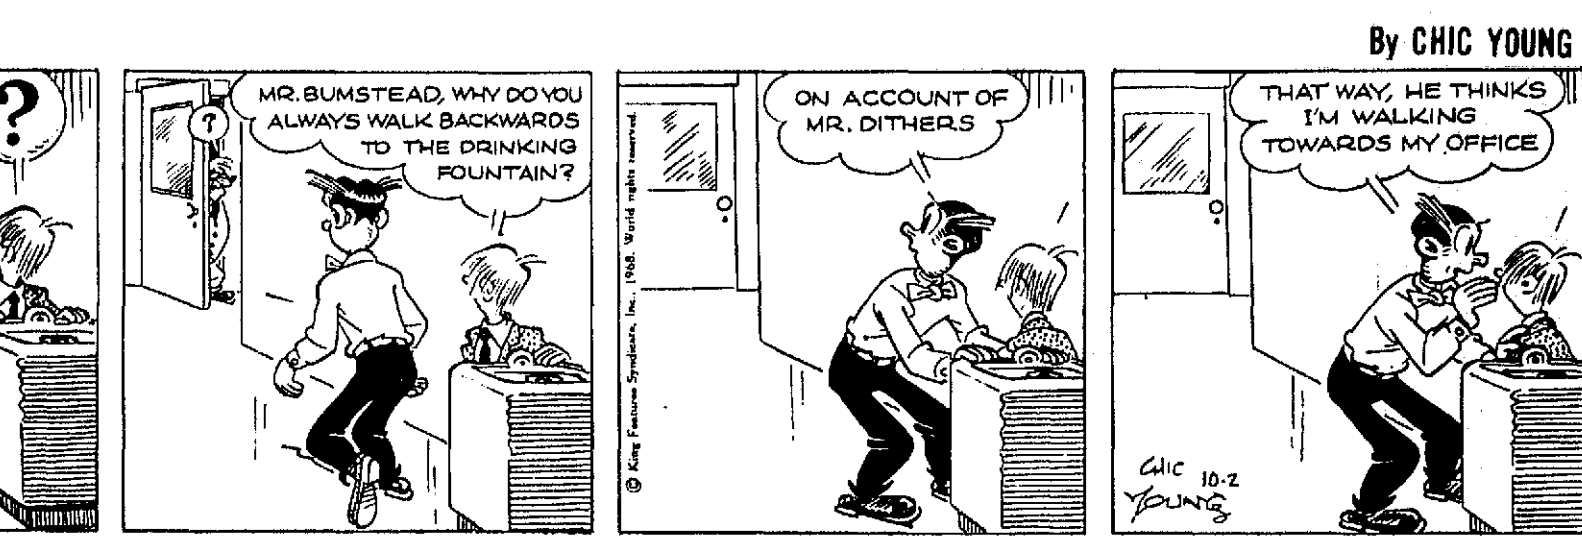

A—It is the only type of fur that does not mat and freeze when the temperature drops to 60 or 70 degrees below zero. For this reason the Eskimos use it to line their parkas. It is also used in aviators' clothing.

Q—Where on the earth's surface is there neither longitude nor latitude?

A—Zero degrees longitude and zero degrees latitude is in the Gulf of Guinea, West Africa.

Five Children Are Still Together

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer
RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Patricia Rogers is 13 and pretty and dreams of becoming a nurse. The dream doesn't seem so distant. Growing up comes early for the six orphaned Rogers' children.

In a two-week period two years ago, their parents were killed in an automobile accident and a fire destroyed their rural home.

Today, five of the Rogers remain together, just as they said they would.

Barbara, 17, married and moved away from the ranch-style home sympathetic craftsmen built on the ashes of the burned bungalow.

Richard, now 20, also married but stays on with his wife, Donna, as head of the family.

But Richard faces a draft call. He is seeking a deferment. "I wouldn't want to be away from the kids that long," he said. He mentioned his 3-year-old sister, Susy. "In the two years I am away, she wouldn't even remember me when I got back."

But Susy, and Lisa, 6, Debby, 10, and Patricia are not counting on Richard's salary as a lathe operator. Their support comes from Social Security and the Veterans' Administration.

There is also the insurance left by Rogers, a factory foreman, and the $31,000 trust fund from contributions that will go to the children when they reach 21.

The contributions, which for a time came from all over the world, stopped six months ago.

"It isn't too hard and it isn't too easy either," said Richard, a short and husky youth who married a girl he met while going to Horlick High School. "Everyone cooperates and actually, there is no problem."

Richard gets up each morning at 5:45. He must be at his job by 7. Donna wakes him; then gets the children up for school. She prepares the meals, sees to it the children are properly dressed, and that they get to the bus on time.

Although married only since March, she in effect has the duties of a mother of five. "I don't mind at all," she said. "As long as I've known Rick, it's been that way."

"During all my life, I've been taking care of kids," Richard said. "In our other house, we only had three bedrooms and the baby always slept with me. Every baby that came along, they'd sleep with me."

"After the accident, it seemed to me we should stay together," he said. "I know I wouldn't want it to be another way if I was younger."

Richard sees himself as a father and Donna as a mother. "That's what the kids think of her as being," he said. "Now Donna's only 19 and Pat is 13 and old for her age. So there isn't that much difference. Still if Donna says anything, Pat would do it. It's the same with the others. They don't say, 'You're not our mother.' They go along."

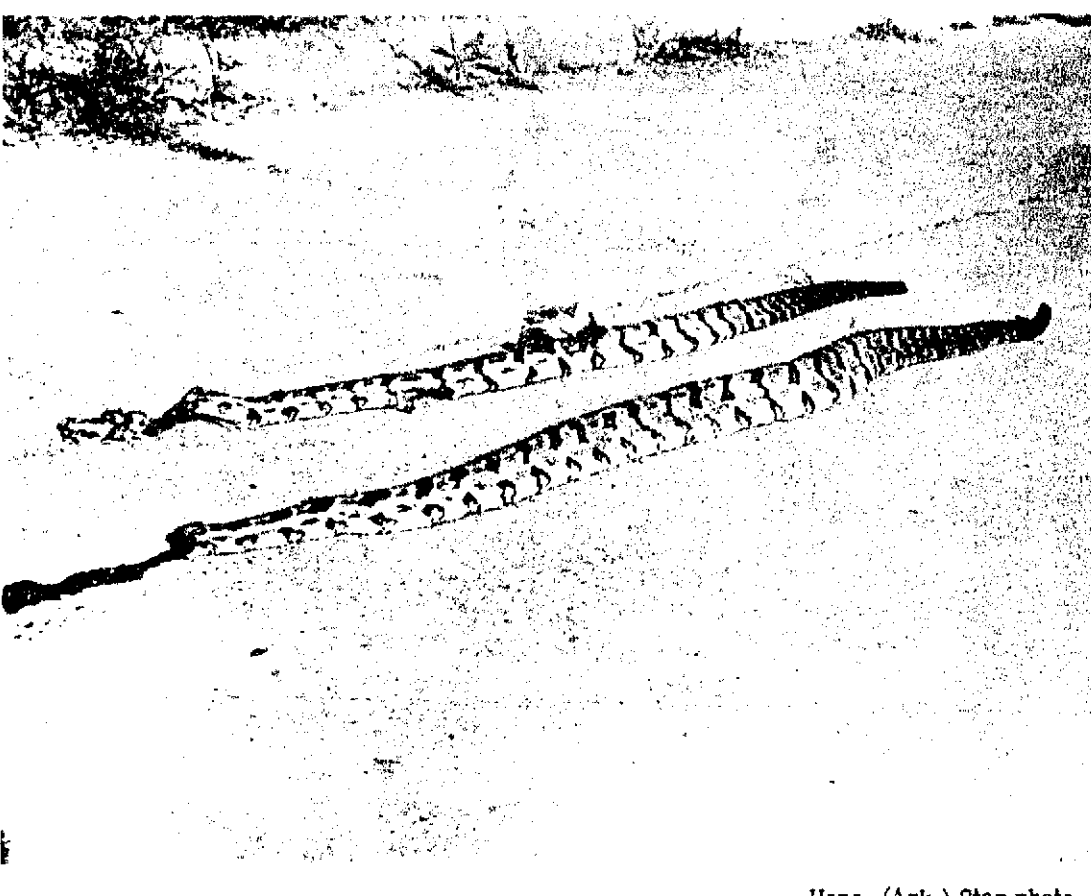

"Sometimes I have my childish moments," he said. "But adults do too. My attitude in life is that I don't think everything is a ball and having fun."

"I'd like to have a good job. But I'd like to have more of an education if I get the chance. If I can go to night school some-

Rainstorms May Strike Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mild temperatures and thunderstorms predicted for today are expected to give way to night and Thursday to clear skies and cool fall weather.

A low pressure system moving rapidly eastward from the Rocky Mountain Range is expected to enter the state tonight, causing the rapid alteration in weather.

No rainfall was reported in the 24-hour period that ended at 7:30 a.m. today.

Low temperatures reported around the state this morning ranged from 58 degrees at Fort Smith to 67 at Pine Bluff and Fayetteville.

Highs Tuesday ranged from 82 at Harrison to 87 at Pine Bluff, Blytheville, Texarkana and Little Rock.

day, I wouldn't mind that at all."

Donna spoke of life with her husband away in the service.

"It would be kind of hard," she said looking at Richard. "There are an awful lot of decisions that I leave up to him. I can't make them."

"There should be a man around the house for some authority, really."

Fight Forces Rerouting of Parade

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A parade down Main Street to mark the opening of the Arkansas Livestock Exposition was rerouted Tuesday after a fight broke out at 6th and Main.

Police Chief R. E. Briens said the incident began while the parade was in progress, when a young Negro man reported to be the arrested woman's son, rushed forward shouting, "You're not going to arrest her."

Briens said there was some shoving and yelling on the crowded sidewalk and that a several bottles were thrown. Two motorcycle policemen rerouted the parade.

About 20 city policemen and State Troopers arrived, armed with billy clubs and wearing helmets, they walked in the street beside a group of shouting, gesturing Negroes.

Police later halted the group, talked to some of its members, and still later split the group in half and sent the two parts in opposite directions.

Briens said several persons were arrested.

Man Charged With Murder in Shooting

—William Earl Goudy, 32, a native of Akron, Ohio, was charged today with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Willie B. Bardwell Sr., 76, of Gilmore, who was found shot to death in his car on Interstate 55 Monday.

Goudy was a former resident of Alton, Ill. He said he was a machinist. Sheriff's deputies arrested Goudy Tuesday night north of Lake David on Interstate 55 while trying to flag down a car to get a ride.

H. I. Dixon, a Crittenden County sheriff's deputy, made the arrest. Dixon said a .38-caliber revolver had been found. He said Bardwell, who was shot in the right side, had been hit by a bullet from a .38-caliber weapon.

Goudy also was carrying a pistol in his pocket, Dixon said. The defendant surrendered the weapon to the deputy voluntarily. Sheriff's officers said they were seeking two other persons Goudy said had been with him.

other six would come from the recommendations of ministers in the counties.

Rockefeller, in a letter to Purcell, called for the Democratic county chairman to select one judge and one clerk, the Republican county chairman to select a judge and a clerk and for the third judge to be chosen by a person designated by the official representative of Wallace.

Discusses Education

President of Henderson State College, M. H. Russell, discussed the problems of higher education at Tuesday's noon luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at Town & Country. He was introduced by High School Principal Joe Barrentine.

Mr. Russell talked about the problems Henderson and other colleges face and solutions suggested. He said that enrollment at Henderson had increased 90 per cent in five years and by 1980 enrollment will be 7,200.

Tentative Agreement in Dispute

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell announced Tuesday a tentative agreement to end out of court a state Election Commission dispute.

And Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller proposed to give the American Independent party of George Wallace representation at polling places in the Nov. 5 general election as a means of solving the hassle over naming of judges and clerks to serve at the precincts.

Purcell said a compromise was agreed to by himself and Truman Altenbaumer, executive secretary of the state Republican party, in the dispute over third members of 16 county election commissions.

The GOP has filed a lawsuit challenging the appointment of the 16, who were selected last month by the Democratic members of the state Board of Election Commissioners.

Purcell said that Rep. Charles Matthews of North Little Rock, chairman of the state Democratic party, and state Treasurer Nancy Hall also agreed to the compromise.

Under the arrangement, 15 of the 16 third members will resign and replacements will be chosen by the state board. Purcell said the Republicans agreed to accept one of the disputed 16, George Cook in Clay County.

Nine of the remaining 16 would be chosen from a list submitted by the GOP and the

Bankruptcy Caused Firm to Collapse

By PETE YOUNG
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — John Haley, chairman of the state Board of Correction, charged Tuesday that the bankruptcy of Arkansas Loan & Thrift Corp. led to the collapse of Peoples Loan & Investment Co.

AL&T of Van Buren was put in receivership last spring and was declared insolvent last month with liabilities exceeding assets by more than $3 million. PL&I of Fort Smith was recently enjoined from doing business and is bankrupt but not insolvent.

Clint Jones, state Securities Commissioner when AL&T was conceived, recently was criticized by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller for not keeping closer tabs on the firm.

Jones retorted that the Republicans had their own AL&T in PL&I, which Haley has represented.

"The company had more than 15 lawyers on retainer, including myself," Haley said. "I did some legal work, principally in connection with only two transactions."

PL&I went into bankruptcy after the state bank commissioner instituted receivership proceedings despite the firm's request for more time, Haley said.

"The receivership was filed because of a run by depositors due to the Arkansas Loan & Thrift situation, because of improper operations dating back over a period of years, and because the Securities and Exchange Commission ruled that deposits could no longer be accepted without federal registration," Haley said.

Haley also traced the bankruptcy of PL&I back to Jones and other Democrats.

"Management investors paid $1 million to certain stockholders for control of the company in the fall of 1965 in reliance upon written statements by Dick Simpson, then bank commissioner, and Clint Jones, that the affairs of the company were in order," Haley said.

"In fact, the investors later found that the company had not been operated in compliance with law, was insolvent and that state regulatory agencies were aware of this," he said.

Haley, with a laugh, said, "If they had sought counsel with me in October of 1965, they never would have bought the thing to begin with."

Cong Asked to Open Way for Peace Talks

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman called today for a North Vietnamese pledge to refrain from exploiting any American bombing halt and so open the way to serious peace-making.

Harriman's statement, made to newsmen before entering the 24th session of the peace talks, appeared to take account of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's qualified campaign promise to end air attacks on the North.

Without commenting on Humphrey's proposal, Harriman said: "It would be very easy for North Vietnam to bring this conference to fruitful discussions. All they have to do is to indicate they are prepared to restrain the military advantage that might come to them from the cessation of the bombing."

Harriman sidestepped directly answering a newsman who had asked if the United States in recent days had received a reformulation of its orders from President Johnson.

The veteran diplomat called attention to what he said was the absurdity of North Vietnamese military plans during recent weeks.

"They have suffered fantastic losses since Aug. 1967," he said. "Some 22,000 of soldiers, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers, have been killed. And then they have made these extraordinary claims. One of them was that they have knocked out in five weeks 835 tanks and armored vehicles."

"The facts are that there were less than 30 destroyed," Harriman said. "Humphrey's latest proposal Monday said if he is elected to the White House, he would call off bombing of North Vietnam. If Hanoi shows a willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

A ranking member of the Hanoi delegation, Le Duc Tho, dismissed the Humphrey formula Tuesday as containing nothing new. The North Vietnamese delegate said Humphrey's suggestion contained a demand for reciprocity "which we reject."

Harriman declined to answer a newsman who had asked whether he backs Humphrey in the presidential election.

Asked if Humphrey's proposal was different from what the U.S. delegation has been trying to achieve, Harriman replied: "No, I won't make any comment on what is being said in the campaign."

Grocer Pleads Guilty to Charge

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lee Berry, president of the Grand Prairie Wholesale Grocery of Stuttgart, pleaded guilty Tuesday in U.S. District Court here to an indictment charging that food had been stored in a warehouse where it became contaminated with insects.

Judge Gordon E. Young set a fine of $750.

William M. Moorhead of Stuttgart, attorney for the defendants, said the firm had hired a professional exterminator and had begun new house-keeping procedures but that because of the age of its warehouse "I can only say that it's a practical impossibility to keep them (insects) out."

"Maybe we can aircondition the flour room so that they won't move and be seen," Moorhead said.

Dissent and Hate Clutter Humphrey's Trail

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WITH THE HUMPHREY CAMPAIGN—(NEA)—On the platform, Hubert Humphrey's familiar chin strains upward as he tries to make himself heard above the jeering.

Below, the youthful crowd shouts on. An angry, unreasonable torrent shoots from mouths ringed with whiskers of painted with clear lipstick. "Bull—! Bull—! Bull—!"

"Sieg heil! Sieg heil!" "Dump the Hump, dump the Hump, dump the Hump."

Clenched fists poke the air above shaking shoulders. Sometimes the fingers open to form the revolutionist's V-for-Victory symbol. Sometimes they open in a slightly different order to fashion raw, unvarnished vulgarity.

"Fascist!" one young woman screams. Her eyes are bloated with tears.

Picket signs fan the hot air above the herd. One sign reads, "SHHHHAME!" Another shouts, "Send Hubert to the DMZ!" Still another is even more explicit; it is a paper-mache likeness of the candidate's head and it's stuck on the end of a stick.

"No! No! No!" the chant picks up. "Ho! Ho! No! No!" On the platform the vice-president of the United States looks down, eyes glazed, smile faded, hands nearly trembling with rage. He can neither speak nor keep silent, and he can do nothing to relieve the agony of it all.

This is Campaign 1968, Hubert Humphrey for President.

It is a baffling, explosive phenomenon, too dangerous to shrug off.

In Louisville, Ky., a sad-eyed lad wearing a peace medalion said of a Humphrey rally: "It would be a good place for a smoke bomb."

In Columbus, Ohio, three collegiates watched a Humphrey welcome with smoldering passions and frankly stated, "Humphrey can't be allowed to win."

In Boston, a red-haired girl who shouted "bastard" throughout a Humphrey speech said that she wished a building would fall on the campaigner.

Small numbers, growing bolder, seem to be calling for physical violence. In Boston, as an example, a few demonstrators actually wandered through the crowd trying to stir up trouble. Ignoring police-prescribed boundaries, they squeezed beyond the ropes to argue with the citizens.

One picket, who said he was David Finkel, 23, a former student, engaged spectators in a testy debate that nearly ended with flesh popping. Finkel urged the killing of fascists to prevent fascism.

"That's real peace talk," somebody answered.

"I'm for peace," Finkel insisted.

"By killing people?"

"It's sometimes necessary."

"When?"

"When there's no other way."

"Hey, this guy wants to kill people."

"I didn't say that, I'm peaceful."

"Oh, go to hell."

A few bystanders acted as mediators in the dispute and kept Finkel away from the nonbelievers. Some scuffles did break out in Boston. And they have broken out at other Humphrey stops. The surprise is such things do not break out more often.

The candidate, certainly, has done everything possible to avoid the confrontations. He has been remarkably, if painfully, restrained. He advises pickets to turn their signs in for "Humphrey" ones.

In Sioux Falls, S. D., a youngster approached the vice-president with a large painted antiwar symbol. He pushed next to Humphrey with noisy flourish.

"We want peace," he yelled at the candidate.

"So do I," Humphrey answered.

At that, Humphrey reached out his hand. The startled demonstrator, taken back, mumbled, "I'll shake on that," and left the proceedings confused, yet happy.

But, in the main, the Democratic candidate has placated precious few of his adversaries. He tries to smile but his face is agonized; he tries to scold and he tries to solicit audience aid.

For Humphrey, the situation is an unparalleled dilemma. All candidates for public office have hecklers, but generally such rudeness is repudiated by the public's majority and the candidate, whoever he is, triumphs with moral victory. George Wallace and his partisan audiences laugh demonstrators into numbed silence.

But Hubert Humphrey can't laugh any more. Neither can his supporters. In fact, Hubert Humphrey has been known to nearly weep during such disorders.

Says one of his friends: "The man is heartsick."

The candidate who has most liberally been sympathetic with the right of dissent is now suffering most liberally from it.

Wherever he goes, they arrive first. Whenever he speaks, they shout. It is not pretty to watch.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

A president and vice-president can be elected from the same state since the Constitution merely provides that presidential electors must vote for a president and vice-president.

VICE PRESIDENT HUMPHREY attracted a crowd at this rally in Buffalo, N.Y., but it wasn't the kind he would have liked. Many of those on hand were there to demonstrate against the Vietnamese war. It's the kind of problem Humphrey faces in almost every major city he visits.

MEADOW MONSTER seems to be attacking an unsuspecting cow. Alert photographer Randy Dieter spotted the amusing situation when the animal wandered near a piece of machinery on a farm near Evansville, Ind.

OFF WITH THE OLD FINISH BEFORE FINISHING OFF THE NEW

By MR. FIX

In refinishing a previously painted or varnished surface, the best results will be obtained by completely removing the old finish. Sanding can be a chore, however, and until recently, chemical paint and varnish removers were almost more trouble than they were worth.

But in recent years removers have come along that work faster, bite deeper and do not require an after-wash to neutralize or remove any traces. Many are nonflammable and odors are not so pronounced.

If the old paint job is an accumulation of too many coats or if the surface is cracked and blistered, consider complete removal. Remember that a new finish will adhere much better to an unfinished surface than to a finished one.

Even if you left the old paint or varnish on, you would still have to do some sanding to provide "tooth" for the new coat. Otherwise the new finish would not adhere well and might even run.

Among the many varieties of removers you will find two basic types, the free-flowing liquid kind and the heavy-bodied types. Use the liquid on horizontal surfaces, the heavier substance on vertical surfaces where it might run.

Follow manufacturer's instructions to the letter. Generally speaking, you should provide plenty of ventilation, since all removers give off fumes, though the newer ones are not as bad as the old. Wear rubber gloves, since these substances are caustic and even the mildest of them can cause irritation. Avoid splashing and keep the youngsters away.

Today's paint removers take much of the work out of refinishing.

The new removers do more than just soften the old finish. They loosen it right from the base so that you can peel it off. Some may require anywhere from 10 to 30 minutes before you can start removing the old paint. Regardless of the time estimate on the label, experiment on a small area first. See just how much time you should leave the remover on before you can start work.

Some will soften the surface quickly. You can actually see the old paint start to bubble up. Try it to see if it comes off right down to the bare wood. If not, you may have to leave it on a little longer. Some removers evaporate faster than others, making the surface go dry again. If this happens, another application is necessary. With such removers, apply only what you can handle in a short period of time.

Use a putty knife or paint scraper on large, flat surfaces. In grooves and corners, use steel wool or rags. Small spots that are left can be cleaned up with steel wool dipped in remover.

Some removers can be washed off. The label will recommend the proper wash, usually a detergent and water.

When applying the remover, brush in one direction only—not back and forth as you would with paint. The latter method breaks the film that the remover forms. The gases trapped under the film help loosen the old paint.

Unless the label indicates that the remover contains a wax that must be removed (usually with turpentine), you are ready to apply the new finish just as soon as the surface is dry. Stick to the newer removers, read the label and you can save a lot of work.

Some Don't Want Arms for Firemen

By HOWARD KERCHEVAL
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

Though some differences exist, some fire chiefs of America's large cities say that firemen should not be armed to combat crowd violence they encounter in fighting some fires.

All say a fireman can't fight a fire in front and watch the people in back.

Detroit Fire Chief Charles J. Quinlan, whose city was hit by rioting in 1967, is one of those opposed to arming firemen.

"We can't enter into the psychological aspect of the riot," he says. "It's our job to save lives and property."

Quinlan, interviewed with several other chiefs attending the convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs here, says he is strictly against arming firemen although he recalls ordering units away from fires because of snipers.

But Los Angeles Chief Raymond Hill has ordered 60 riot guns for firemen going into riot-prone areas. Each gun holds six cartridges, or seven with one in the chamber.

Hill says firemen should be able to defend themselves if they are trapped by a hostile crowd.

Most of the chiefs say it is the duty of policemen to furnish protection and most have arrangements where police cars answer fire calls. If no police protection is available and if a crowd at a fire turns ugly, the chiefs say they simply order their men to leave.

But even with sniping and rock-throwing, the chiefs say the morale and efficiency of their men has not suffered.

Henry Galotta, the just-retired chief of the Washington, D.C., fire department, said "the efficiency of any fire department in riot conditions depends on the amount of protection it gets allowing it to carry out its assignment unharrassed."

Galotta said 17 men were hospitalized after the rioting in Washington which followed the assassination last April of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

But, he said, most of these men remained on the job until the episodes of violence were over.

During disorders in Newark, N.J., in July of 1967 Capt. Michael Moran of the fire department was shot to death.

Always before, Chief Joseph Redden says, firemen have been accepted as "good guys," or protectors of life and property.

"Since 1967," he says, "we are not only not accepted, but we are attacked."

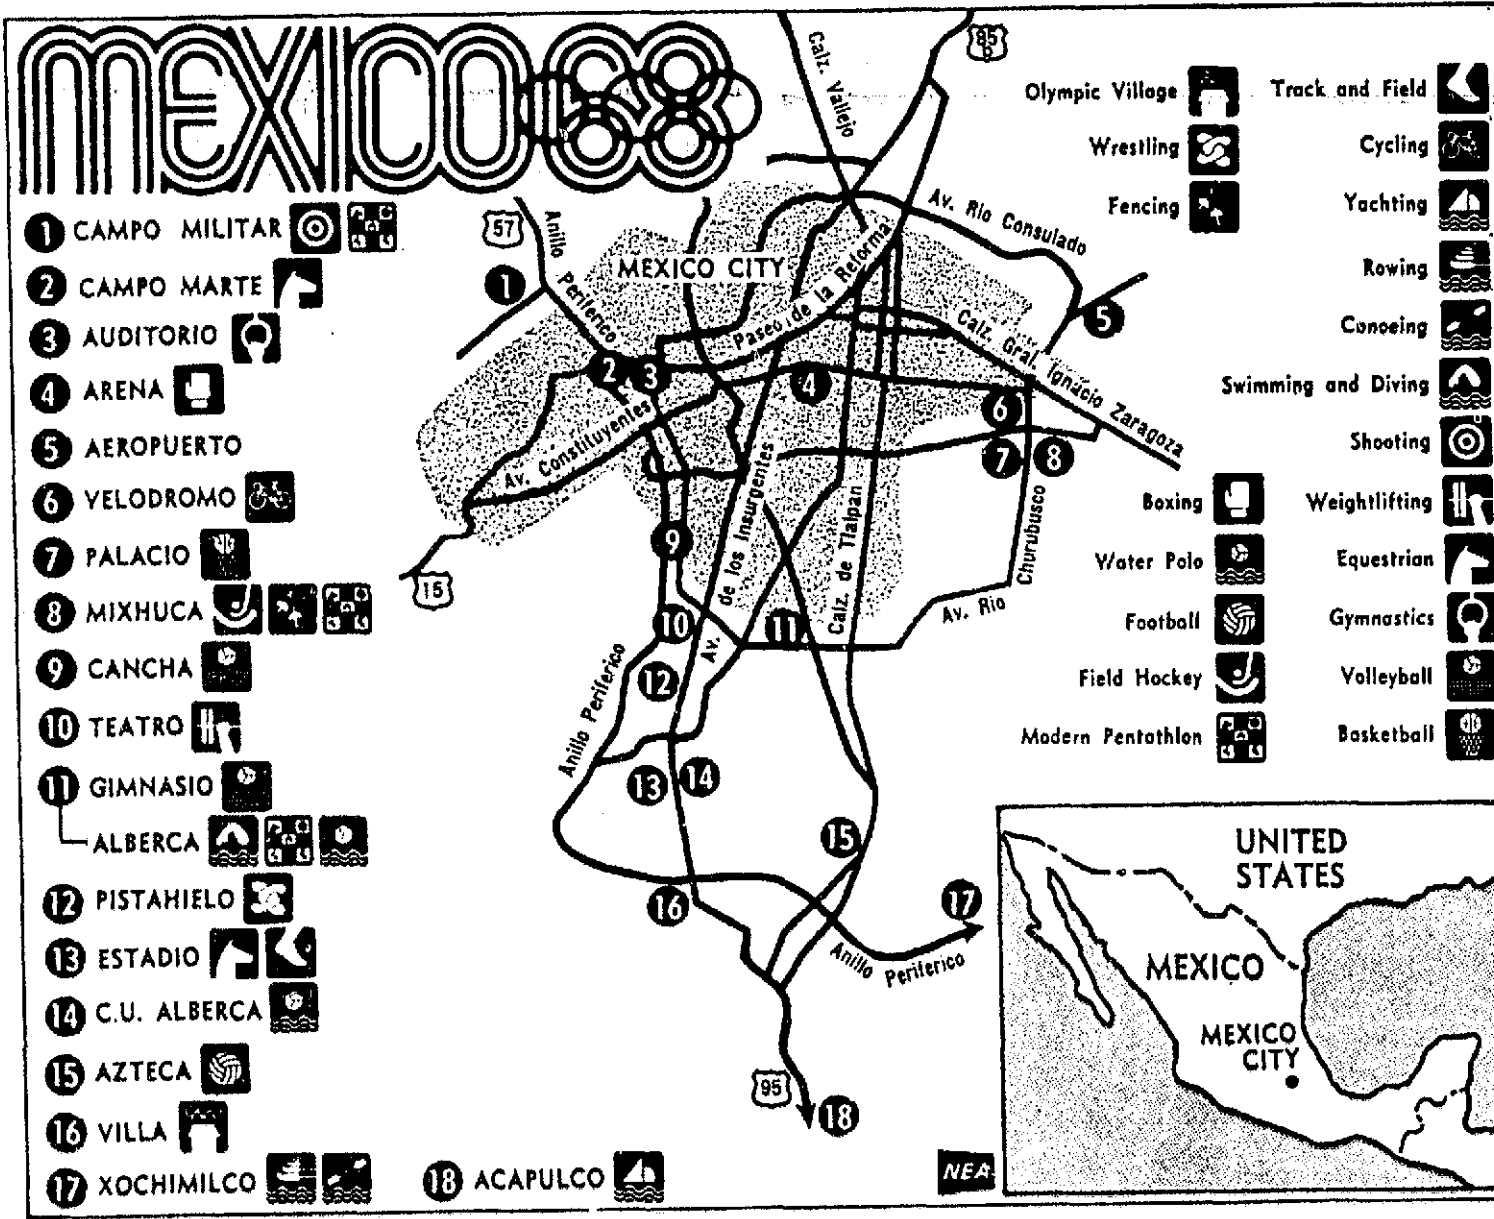

Fire departments now are taking measures to protect firemen by covering their faces with tough, clear plastic shields, their necks and ears with high collars and their hands with gloves.

Redden says his men are under orders to wear full equipment from the time they leave the fire house until they return—no matter how hot it gets.

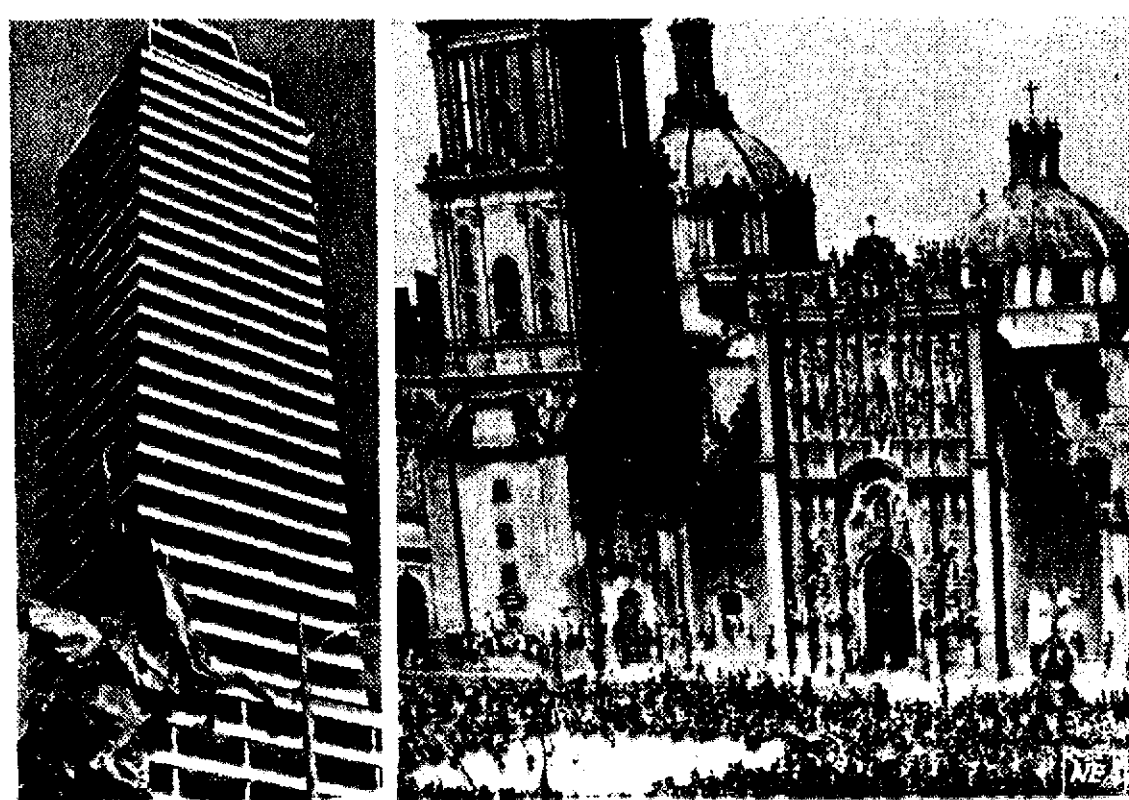

Many departments also are covering open cockpits with plywood and screening firemen on the rear with plexiglass shields.

Early Measure

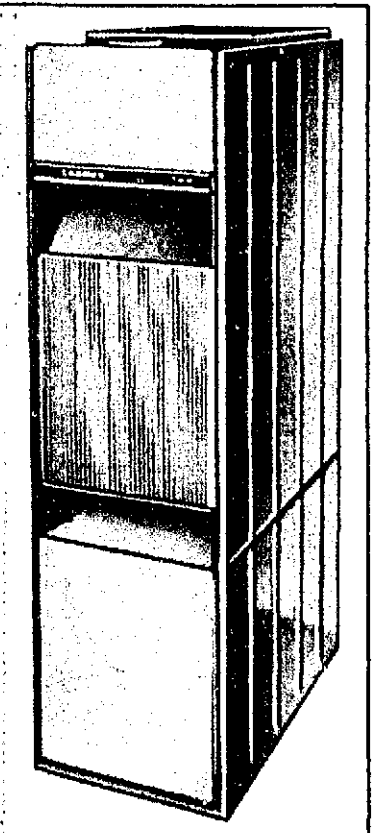

Early civilization had a measurement called the cubit. Common in Biblical times, this was the length of the forearm from the tip of the middle finger to the elbow.

Map shows location of sites in and around Mexico City where games of the 19th Olympiad will take place on Oct. 12-27. Official symbols indicate events which are scheduled for each athletic arena.

MEXICO CITY is full of contrasts, most obvious of which is its architecture. At left a modern structure rises not far from Zocalo, right, the main plaza and site of a 400-year-old cathedral.

bond issue is for, the amount of the bond issue, what the interest rates will be?" Crank asked. "Have you heard him say what broad tax increases he wants and what these tax increases are to be spent for?" "Has he now decided that he needs a mixed-drink bill, since he is issuing permits even though the attorney general has ruled that it is illegal?" Crank asked.

The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has issued several dozen Class 6 permits, which gives ABC Board recognition to sale of mixed drinks, although Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell has said in a formal opinion that such permits are invalid. The issue is pending in Pulaski County Chancery Court.

In the Church year, Advent, which ushers in the Christmas season, begins on St. Andrew's Day (Nov. 30) or the Sunday closest thereto.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Notice Is Hereby Given That in pursuance of the authority and directions contained in the decretal order of the Chancery Court of Hempstead County, Arkansas, made and entered on the 1st day of October, 1968, in a certain cause then pending therein wherein Jessie M. Raley, et al, were plaintiffs and Helen Updike, et al, were defendants, Case No. 9363, the undersigned, as Commissioner of said Court, will offer for sale, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door or entrance to the Court House in the City of Hope, in Hempstead County, Arkansas, within the hours for judicial sales, on Thursday, the 24th day of October, 1968, the following described lands situated in the County of Hempstead, in the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

A part of the Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (SW $\frac{1}{4}$  NE $\frac{1}{4}$ ) of Section Five (5), Township Twelve (12) South, Range Twenty-seven (27) West, more particularly described as follows: Commence at the Northeast Corner of said SW $\frac{1}{4}$  NE $\frac{1}{4}$  of said Section 5 and run thence South 105 yards to the Point Of Beginning, continue thence South 103 1-3 yards, run thence West 133 1-3 yards, run thence North 103 1-3 yards, run thence East 133 1-3 yards back to the Point Of Beginning, containing 2.75 acres, more or less, except one-half acre, more or less, heretofore conveyed to Betty B. McJunkins and more particularly described as follows, to-wit: A part of the SW $\frac{1}{4}$  NE $\frac{1}{4}$  of Section 5, Township 12 South, Range 27 West, more particularly described as follows: Commence at the Northeast Corner of said SW $\frac{1}{4}$  NE $\frac{1}{4}$  of said Section 5 and run thence South 520 feet to The Point Of Beginning, run thence West 230 feet, run thence South 105 feet, run thence East 230 feet, run thence North 105 feet back to The Point Of Beginning.

GIVEN Under my hand on this 1st day of October, 1968.

Jim Cole
Commissioner

The Hempstead County United Fund has added a new division this year. The Co-Chairmen are Harry Hawthorne and Jimmy Griffin. They have to work with them, Calvin Caldwell. Their job will be to contact all retail merchants in the county. Even though many people outside of Hope donate each year, it has been because they are employed in an industry or a store in Hope.

Clifford Franks, division chairman for Wholesalers has his workers contacting the donors. The workers in his division are: Dr. F.C. Crow, A.T. Trout, Eddie Whitman, Tom Berry, Lynn Murphy and Richard Hogue.

The first reports on the drive are coming in and it appears that this will be a very successful campaign.

The Golden Songbird: Peggy Lee Could Hum Before She Talked

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Peggy Lee, the golden songbird of her time, hates to be called a perfectionist.

"It makes me sound too much as if I were one of those fussy women who always bustle around seeing that the ashtrays are clean," she sighed. "And I'm not that way."

"But I do pay great attention to detail to my work because I want to improve it, and if that makes me a perfectionist, then I suppose I am. But everybody enjoys a show better when it is done creatively."

Peggy invests from $25,000 to $30,000 preparing a show, a sum larger than is sometimes spent to launch an entire off-Broadway play. Her investment has always paid off.

Over a career that spans three decades, the champagne-blonde singer has recorded more than 500 songs, 100 of which she wrote herself. Her weekly income is high in the five-figure bracket. Tops with the public, she is also a favorite with her fellow musicians. They tend to rate Peggy and Ella Fitzgerald as the best of the living popsingers.

She is self-tutored, and like most of the truly great ones she came up the hard way—step by painful step.

"My sister said I hummed before I learned to talk," she said. Born Norma Jean Engstrom, daughter of the railway station agent in Jamestown, N.D., she lost her mother when she was four. At 17, on a borrowed railroad pass and $18, she set out for Hollywood, and rode sitting up in a coach car all the way.

"I was terribly shy and naive, and didn't even know where to go to find a place to sing," she said. "I was a short order cook, a waitress and an amusement park barker. I was down to a dime, literally, when I got a job at a supper club for $3 a night and my meals."

Bronchial illness that has plagued her throughout her adult life forced her to return home. Then Ken Kennedy of Station WDAY in Fargo, N.D., gave her a job and remained her Peggy Lee.

"I like the name—it has been very good to me," said Peggy. "I like it better than some of the names you hear now—such as The Electric Prune."

After touring with several Midwest bands, Peggy was summoned by Benny Goodman to be his leading vocalist. In 1942 she recorded "Why Don't You Do Right?" the first of a parade of smash hits. They include "Lover," "Manana," "Golden Earrings," "Fever," "It's a Good Day," and "I Don't Know Enough About You."

Gifted in many fields, Peggy is a skilled painter and poet. She is widely read and a sentence from Ralph Waldo Emerson has deeply inspired her in time of trouble: "God will not have his work done by cowards."

"I have the feeling sometimes that the public thinks I am sad because I sometimes sing sad songs," she said. "I have had sad times"—her three marriages ended in divorce—"but I have a sense of humor and love to laugh."

and that "I will, of course, be participating in its work as associate justice."

"In view of these circumstances," Fortas wrote, "I ask you to withdraw by nomination as chief justice."

"Continued efforts to secure confirmation of that nomination, even if ultimately successful, would result in a continuation of the attacks upon the court which have characterized the filibuster—attacks which have been sometimes extreme and entirely unrelated to responsible criticism."

"Attacks of this sort would be especially inappropriate and harmful to the court and the nation if they should continue while the court is in session, engaged in the adjudication of issues of great importance to the nation as well as the litigants."

There was no immediate comment at the White House on the Fortas letter.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana, had said Tuesday he planned to decide by the end of the week whether to try to overturn the Senate vote against Fortas' nomination.

The Senate dealt Fortas and President Johnson a prestige-crushing blow Tuesday when an attempt to end a filibuster against the appointment fell 14 votes short.

Mansfield, who is under strong pressure to end the Senate session soon because of the upcoming election, said after the vote: "I am thinking the whole picture through and trying to decide on my next move. I want to assess the lineup of the Senate and see what the prospects and possibilities are."

If he can't drum up support the nomination will be dead, for all intents and purposes.

Fortas' foes were confident that there will be no shifts from the vote, which was 45 to 43 to kill the filibuster—far short of the two-thirds margin needed to limit debate and bring the nomination to the floor.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, a key opponent of the effort to kill the filibuster, said he doesn't know of a single Senator who will change from his position.

Despite the rebuff, President Johnson served notice he's not about to withdraw the nomination of Fortas to replace Chief Justice Earl Warren.

"The nomination is still there," said a White House spokesman.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said if Johnson fails to withdraw the nomination, "those of us who oppose it will continue to debate the matter indefinitely."

Sliced Thin by The Editor
Alex. H. Washburn
Resuming Letters to The Star on Local Option

I interrupt these proceedings to report that a local girl was doing a nice job of faking interest in baseball this morning until she asked: "By the way, what teams are playing in the World Series?"

Editor The Star: I have been rather concerned about the implications of your editorials on the wet-dry issue which is to be voted on in November. In one editorial you implied that you personally were intending to see that any church, which allowed its property to be used as a place to organize opposition to a wet vote, would lose the right of its members to deduct contributions from their personal income tax. I suppose you would do this by giving the necessary information to the Internal Revenue Service. If this doesn't work do you intend to launch a personal campaign to have this right revoked? I ask this question so that we can know just how far you intend to carry your fight.

Without any personal malice toward you or any of your staff, I would like to take this opportunity to say that I am personally preparing to oppose you, or anyone else, who proposes legalizing the sale of alcohol in any manner and in any place the opportunity presents itself. I will do this without regard to any monetary penalty it may place upon me. I would hope that any person who professes any degree of Christianity would do the same. If church members would let a few tax deductions stand in the way of the free expression of their beliefs then they might as well lock the church doors and forget the whole thing, for they would only be playing church anyway.

In your writing you say this is the law; could you give us any instance where a church has ever been denied this right? All of the instances that you have given in your editorials so far have been organizations which were organized strictly for the purpose of changing legislation. I think that we have known for sometime that money contributed directly to a campaign of this type could not be deducted but I cannot see how this could be construed to mean that all contributions to a church could not be deducted simply because that church was used one time to organize a campaign. If what you say is true then how have civil rights organizations escaped this law for so long? Their marches are almost always organized in churches. They even go there to escape the police.

Thank you very much for your time and I hope that you and all others who support alcohol can be made to see the terrible consequences of its use; wrecked cars, death on the highways, broken homes, crime, orphaned children, rape, murder; this is all worse in wet communities. I know, I've lived in them. Yours for a dry and sane people.

Editor The Star: May I assure you that there are about 300,000 citizens back of you? If you need help just call and you will get it.

I have for the past few years spoken out in Leslie, Dennard, and Clinton — that if preachers use their churches to fight for prohibition and deny us the right to have legalized alcoholic beverages sold in our dry counties to get taxes, then we will have to tax the church properties to get taxes for county services. Most people agreed with me, although some did foam at the mouth.

I certainly was surprised to see one man with the guts to fight the preachers. And I'm sure the people who read both the Little Rock papers Saturday (Sept. 21) saw your statement. This should give the shy ones guts to speak out in their churches, and the pious ones will do some thinking about having to pay taxes on their donations.

We need Madalyn Murray to shake up the preachers in Arkansas. She opened the eyes of Chicago Catholics. Last spring the Catholics demanded of Cardinal Cody that he make public the archdiocese's income and how it was spent. Of course he wouldn't do that.

If the preachers don't start working for God and Christ in the

HHH Policy Wrong, Says Opponent

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, maintaining his own Vietnam policy silence, says that about anyway Hubert H. Humphrey handles the war issue will be wrong.

Nixon's tactics are pointing at establishing a vise around his Democratic opponent's stand on the war in relation to the Johnson Administration's policies.

— If Humphrey parts company with Johnson on the war, Nixon says he has endangered prospects for a negotiated peace this year.

— But if the vice president stands by the Johnson line, Nixon calls him a candidate bound to the ways of the past.

Nixon made these points Tuesday during a campaign swing from Detroit to Erie and Scranton, Pa. He spent the night in Virginia as he began a two-day southern trip.

The Republican nominee opened in Detroit with a suggestion that Humphrey's qualified endorsement of a halt to bombing of North Vietnam might undermine the American position at the Paris negotiating table.

"The trump card that our negotiators have in order to assure any kind of success is the bombing halt," Nixon told his first full-scale news conference in two weeks. "Now, if that trump card is played by either of the presidential candidates by indicating that we in January might do something, negotiators have left nothing in Paris. It means that all chance for those negotiations to succeed will evaporate."

Nixon said Humphrey's statement on bombing "if he did not mean it to be a departure from his previous position of not pulling the rug out from under our negotiators, has been widely interpreted to the contrary."

Nixon called upon his Democratic rival for clarification and said it is possible Hanoi could read the Humphrey statement as offering a concession.

Nixon challenged Humphrey next 10 years they will be out of jobs. Ten-year-old children hear their parents express opinions about the preachers after church services. The kids aren't stupid. Nowadays they get their diplomas, walk out of high school, out of their father's home, out of their church, and go to other states for employment — and find honky-tonks more pleasant than church.

I hope that your county wins over the preachers. Your piece (Sept. 19) gave them fair warning.

JERRY S. MALIK
Sept. 23, 1968
Route 1, Box 59
Dennard, Ark. 72629

Editor's Note: Dennard is on U.S. Highway 85 between Clinton and Marshall — many miles north of Little Rock. How come such distant people get into a local fight in Hempstead county? The answer is plain:

Our editorial "Fair Warning" of Sept. 19 was picked up in part by the Associated Press and distributed state-wide to newspapers and radio stations Sept. 20-21. Radio Station KARK, Little Rock, called me back for a voice transcript.

As the local public knows we aren't anti-church. We are aware that in recent years a movement has gained ground to tax church property like commercial buildings — a proposition we oppose. Churches and schools should always be tax-exempt, as any solid American knows.

But in recent years the government has been catching up with tax-exempt institutions which harbor campaigns to influence legislation — canceling their exemption. This is something I know about personally, as you read on Sept. 19 — so I gave due warning in advance of Hempstead county's local option campaign.

We aim to discuss local option in terms of taxation rather than an imaginary morality — and the first order of business is to make sure that one side of the argument isn't conducted from a tax-exempt base while the other side does pay taxes.

Wonders Why Concrete Only Is Used on the Interstate Routes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller and his Democratic opponent Marion Crank flailed away at each other in speeches Tuesday with both accusing the other of dealing in "half-truths and lies."

At a rally at Monticello, Rockefeller described Crank as a "desperate man" and he warned the crowd of 3,000 not to let Crank "give you half-truths and lies."

Rockefeller said Crank was "the reincarnation of the man I ran against in 1964," referring to his race that year against former Gov. Orval Faubus.

"When you see the people he's associated with and has around him, you can see, if he's elected, it will be back to the so-called good old days," Rockefeller said.

Earlier Tuesday at Camden, Rockefeller implied that Arkansas' interstate highway system was 100 per cent concrete because of the influence of Crank and W.R. "Witt" Stephens.

Stephens is president of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., and Crank is a former vice president of Arkla's Foreman Cement Corp. subsidiary.

"Why is it that Arkansas is the only state in the nation that has 100 per cent of its interstate system surfaced with concrete rather than asphalt even when engineers have recommended the use of asphalt?" Rockefeller asked.

Crank charged that the Republican administration has dealt in "half-truths, omissions and outright lies."

The charge of falsehoods from the Rockefeller camp was made by Crank in connection with a 44-page magazine boasting the GOP administration.

The book Crank said, was sent to 800,000 Arkansas people, with the title "Building for the People."

"Ironically, it was printed in New Orleans, La.," Crank said. "It cost Mr. Rockefeller at least as much money as I will spend on my entire campaign."

Crank said he did not criticize Rockefeller for being wealthy, but did criticize the way the money was being spent "to create an image for a man who, if he had conducted himself well in his office, should already have a good image." Crank called the magazine a "propaganda sheet." He noted it tells that citizens saved $2 million through reduction of credit insurance rates.

"It fails to note, however, the controversial increase in automobile liability rates that cost our citizens millions more than they saved on credit insurance rates," he said.

Crank said the magazine says the Children's Colony capacity has been doubled under the Rockefeller administration, but he said everything done to help the mentally retarded children of the state was accomplished before Rockefeller became governor.

"He has done absolutely nothing to enlarge, expand or improve the program for our handicapped children," Crank said.

"What this state needs is action," Crank said, citing numerous studies mentioned in the magazine.

The Democratic nominee said that Arkansas has lost $8 million this year in federal funds because the state discontinued the education construction program.

Crank pointed to a meeting between Rockefeller and Associated Press representatives at which time the governor said his campaign would be based on a bond issue, tax increase and mixed-drink legislation.

"Have you heard him say during this campaign what the LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ronald C. Wood, 24, of Lake City pleaded guilty Tuesday in U.S. District Court here to an indictment charging that he failed to report for two years of civilian duty in lieu of military service.

Judge Gordon E. Young sentenced Wood, a Jehovah's Witness, to three years in prison.

Wood had been classified as a conscientious objector by the Jonesboro Draft Board and had been directed to report on May 15 to the University of Arkansas Medical Center in Little Rock for civilian employment, which he failed to do.

Rusk Lashes the Czech Occupation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk today denounced the Soviet military intervention in Czechoslovakia, and declared it had "sent a shock wave of indignation and apprehension around the world."

The U.S. secretary of state, making his first U.N. speech, was interrupted by three demonstrators in the public gallery who shouted and displayed a banner saying "Stop the War in Vietnam" before they were hustled from the chamber by security guards. Another demonstrator, who stood and displayed a sign declaring "Big Firms Get Rich, GIs die," also was ejected.

Rusk told the 125-nation General Assembly that the United States wants peace in Vietnam and is ready to halt the bombing of North Vietnam "the minute we can be confident that this would lead toward peace."

Stricter Law Enforcement Suggested

CORNING, Ark. (AP) — Congressional candidate Bill Alexander, seeking the 1st District position, said today, "The secret to greater respect for our laws is stricter enforcement."

"It's as simple as that," Alexander said on a campaign stop in Corning.

"There's no reason to make anything difficult out of it," the Democratic nominee said. "We're fortunate in eastern Arkansas to have the law officers, juries and courts to properly enforce the law."

Fortas Asks Nomination Withdrawal

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson received and accepted "with deep regret" today a request by Abe Fortas that his nomination as chief justice of the United States be withdrawn.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas asked President Johnson today to withdraw his nomination as chief justice.

In a letter to the President, Fortas said that the continued efforts to secure Senate confirmation of his nomination, even if ultimately successful, would result in a continuation of attacks upon the court.

The letter was released at the Supreme Court simultaneously with its delivery to the President at the White House.

Fortas' request that his controversial nomination be withdrawn followed a vote in the Senate Tuesday which fell 14 short of the two-thirds necessary to cut off a filibuster by opponents.

The 58-year-old justice, appointed to the Supreme Court by Johnson in 1965, started off his letter by saying he had noted the failure to end the filibuster in the Senate.

He coupled this with the observation that the new term of the court will begin on Monday.

Copters With Wounded Shot Down

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Two evacuation helicopters loaded with wounded Americans were shot down by North Vietnamese troops during a fierce battle in the jungles south of Da Nang, military spokesmen reported today.

U.S. headquarters said several soldiers who had been wounded in the ground fighting were unaccounted for and presumed dead. They were aboard one of the helicopters that was destroyed while trying to evacuate them to a field hospital.

The U.S. Command declined to say how many men were missing while a search was still on for their bodies, but unconfirmed reports put the number at three. Four crewmen aboard the helicopter, a corpsman and two wounded infantrymen were rescued. The crewmen and the corpsman were wounded.

The second helicopter was recovered. None of the crewmen or wounded aboard it was killed or missing. But three of them were reported wounded.

Headquarters said 23 Americans were wounded in the day-long fighting Tuesday, but none killed in the ground action that was touched off when enemy troops opened fire on troops of the 198th Light Infantry Brigade sweeping the area.

The number of enemy casualties was not known. The loss of the one helicopter raised to four the number downed by enemy ground fire in the past three days in South Vietnam and to 876 the total for the war.

Headquarters also announced the loss of the third warplane over North Vietnam in the last four days. A Marine Corps A4 Skyhawk was downed in the northern half of the demilitarized zone Tuesday while spotting targets for the newly arrived.

City Officers Johnson and Neal said the Page vehicle had stopped to make a left turn off the highway and was hit from behind by the city vehicle whose driver, Calvin Ware, was charged with following too close.

An auto driven by Mrs. Al Page and a City Sewer Dept. truck driven by Calvin Ware collided on West Third about 1 p.m. today.

Mrs. Page suffered lacerations about the head and neck. She was taken to a local hospital for treatment. However, her injuries were not considered critical.

City Officers Johnson and Neal said the Page vehicle had stopped to make a left turn off the highway and was hit from behind by the city vehicle whose driver, Calvin Ware, was charged with following too close.

Two Others Injured Critically

Three persons were killed and two critically injured about 1 a.m. Wednesday when their camper pickup struck a tractor-trailer truck which had overturned moments earlier on U.S. Highway 67 about 11 miles west of Hope.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Cissy Thurman, 35, of Bryan, Texas, the world's champion rodeo barrel racer for the past two years; Mrs. Rose Lewis, 34, of Sulphur, Okla. and one of her twin 10 year old daughters, Ina Ann Lewis.

In critical condition were Robert Lewis, husband of Mrs. Lewis, and the other twin, Jan Lewis. Mr. Lewis remains in a local hospital but the young girl was transferred to a Texarkana hospital about noon today.

State Policemen Robert Neal and Wallace Martin said the eastbound tractor-trailer driven by Walter Stanley of Bryant, Ark. struck two cows, causing the truck wheels to lock to the left. The truck veered across the highway and overturned.

The camper pickup, driven by Lewis, was unable to avoid the wreckage, striking the overturned transport and bursting into flames, the officers said. Passing motorists got everyone out of the burning vehicle.

Driver of the transport, Stanley escaped serious injury. The pickup truck was pulling two horses and the victims apparently were returning from a performance in the Arkansas Livestock Exhibition in Little Rock. The horses were destroyed.

State Police said the owner of the cows hadn't been found. Arkansas has a stock law.

Ambulances from Herndon and Oakcrest Funeral Homes here brought the dead and injured into Hope. A local fire truck put out the burning vehicle.

The bodies will be taken to Bryan and Sulphur for burial.
